ALBUM OF THE MONTH

ROBOSONIC
'Sturm Und Drang'
(DISKOMAFIA)

Really interesting stuff this from the Berlin/Buenos Aires duo, with each of the 12 tracks referencing a great work of literature. Sounds like a chin stroker's paradise but you'll find a cracking collection of deep, splintering techno that moves through phases (dub, minimal, full-on banging) at will. There's so much going on in every track; one minute it's the haunting string atmospherics of '1984', the next it's the magnetic electro chords and VonStroke-style bleeps and tweets of 'Yasmin' and 'Die Blechtrommer'. Pick out individual thumpers for your dancefloor requirements if you must, but this really does work best taken in one, long sweep of electronic goodness as there are enough peaks, drops and spaced out detours to satisfy the most demanding, impatient listener. This is definitely the thinking man's sound of the underground. Highly recommended. M8/M8
